This week in School Health

Tracking research, resources and reports on healthy, safe, community and effective schools.

Welcome to our multiple-source information service offered as a membership service by several organizations. For more information on this service, go to About this wiki/blog. Postings to this blog have been made daily since September 2007 and are listed on a weekly basis. This home page presents the items for the current week, but most of the items are not time sensitive, so you may want to browse previous weeks in our Weekly Archive of Postings or by reading our Monthly Newsletter. Learn more about this multifaceted blog by viewing our video web tour.

We also list the SH related articles from an extensive number of professional journals in our JournalWatch. The list is kept on a monthly basis and is a great, time-saving way for readers to keep up with the research. We are also starting programs to Share Web BookMarks and Share Presentations using social networking platforms. Join us in using a common method for posting these resources and then take what you need for posting on your own web site.

A recent addition to this web site is a set of pages containing national and state reports, articles, surveys results, case studies, presentations and web sites on all countries and states/provinces in the world. We already have information on over 60 of the 200 countries. These pages should be a great addition to the "fast-find" value of this web site.

This wiki uses the Discussion Forum to post threaded discussions on topics such as SH & Academic Performance and National Policies in SH. Please join the conversation by adding content or comments to those threads or start a thread on your own. Gain control of the email and other notices that you receive from this wiki by joining and creating a profile. Learn how in our video/web tour or, read these detailed instructions on how to manage your wetpaint account or profile). In particular, you should learn how to "watch" and "unwatch" pages in this wiki by viewing this brief video. Or, read these detailed instructions on managing your account from Wetpaint. (PS If you want to know what is new since you last visited this web site, select "Updates" from the top navigation bar, then select the page you want to review from the list on "Pages". Or, you can choose to watch a selected page by using the settings within your profile.

Patterns of Urban Violent Injury: A Spatio-Temporal Analysis SAVE
 Our results demonstrate that there is a distinctive spatio-temporal pattern in violent injury reflected in the ambulance data. People injured in this urban centre more commonly live in areas of social deprivation. During the day, locations of injury and locations of residences are similar. However, later at night, the injury location of highest density shifts to a "nightlife" district, whereas the residence locations of those most at risk of injury do not change.

The Daily, Wednesday, January 13, 2010. Canadian Health Measures Survey SAVE

Between 1981 and 2009, fitness levels of Canadian children and youth, as well as those of adults, declined significantly, according to the first findings from the Canadian Health Measures Survey (CHMS). This is the most comprehensive national survey ever conducted in Canada to determine fitness levels.

Working With Consultants

shared by Settlement AtWork on 14 Feb 10 - Snapshot

Settlement AtWork on 14 Feb 10

When my company is stuck, I'm just as inclined to hire an outside advisor as other leaders are. But I hate it. Hiring a consultant means something needs to be fixed, or grown, or that I don't know what to do next. I'm not talking about contractors whom I hire to do what I need and they are supplemental labor. I'm talking the consultants where I hire them to advise me. Hiring them usually means we've already failed in our first effort. It mostly means we are vulnerable. We need. So I believe we should all hate consultants. You probably already do. It's okay. I give you permission.

Meg Kwasnicki on 17 Feb 10

This blog post provides the tools to help hold up a personal mirror and reflect back why working with a consultant may or may not be the right decision for the organization. It acknowledges some of issues that might bring an organization to the point where they need a consultant and what kinds of outcomes your organization might want to determine before entering into a relationship with a consultant. It gives you permission to hate finding a consultant, but also the tools to assess if it is in fact OK to drink the Koolaid and get that consultant to tell you what you might know already.
